

How to handle your new Bee Girl by Parablock

Contains: Breast, Ass, Thighs, Hips, Pussy, Clit, Nipples, and Areola growth. Features honey lactation. Contains suggestions of corruption and implications of horny shenanigans afoot.

Viewer discretion is advised.

Preamble:

Hey everyone, I've been in a helluva mood lately for making horny stories. I can't say what specifically is motivating it, but I've just felt the need to make some nice hot works dug out of horny scenes in my mind.

There was an original version of this story idea that involved a lot more intimate "bee keeping and breeding" where we got to get into stuff like public use, and LOTS of sex, but the story ended up taking me in a different direction instead. For those who like that sort of stuff, you can picture the kind of naked debauchery I would've had, trust me its all very erotic.

That aside, I hope you enjoy the story. I was worried about it wandering a bit too far into the body-horror avenue, so I might've tamed some transformations a bit, but that also ended up really suiting the natural flow of narrative here.

Thank you for picking up your new Curses R' Us Bee Girl recruitment and care package. Inside you should find the following items:

One (1) vial of royal honey, in its specially sealed container. Please follow the listed warnings when handling, and ensure your work area is clean before unpacking.

Twenty (20) vials of sugary nectar solution

Four (4) 1L Honey collection containers, with resealable lids.

Our specially fitted Custom Honey Worker outfit, composed of:

- Opera-length black silk gloves

- Thigh-high black silk tights

- Yellow and Black striped leotard (specially designed for easy access to nipples)

The Straps and Restraints collection, featuring everything you'll need to keep your new Bee Girl properly posed and ready for use

Once you have confirmed everything is present and secured your new recruit, we can begin!

WARNING: The Bee Girl Recruitment and Care package is not meant for self-application. Using any Curses R' Us product outside of its recommended application will void your warranty and may result in your recruitment into the Curses R' Us long-term care program. Please use our products responsibly, and in accordance with local laws.

1. Ensure that your new Bee recruit (recruit not included) is housed in a comfortable space for presentation and use. It should be a space that contains all basic amenities required for human living. While your Bee Girl will not require as much food or water once she begins her transformation, it is important to remember that care and comfort will make harvesting a much easier and more pleasant experience for everyone involved!

2. Dress your recruit in nothing but our Custom Honey Worker outfit before restraining her for optimal use. A proper restraining pose should keep her arms securely behind her back without causing too much discomfort, and keep her breasts easily accessible. It is important to use our reinforced restraints when securing a Bee Girl recruit, as the recruiting process tends to lead to dramatic changes in weight, especially in breasts, hips, and buttocks. Suggested poses can be found at figure A at the back of the manual. Ensure that your recruit is awake and alert before moving to the next step.

3. Open your vial of Royal Honey by following the labelled instructions on the vial. Do not sniff or bring the vial close to your face. Do not drink the vial yourself. You will want to drink the vial, but doing so will result in your recruitment into our long-term care program.

You know what it will do, do not give in to the temptation.

4. Feed the vial of Royal Honey to your recruit. If they are resistant, simply waft the vial under their nose until they become compliant. Additional stimulation and encouragement can help in ensuring that your recruit is ready for their new job in honey production!

5. Once they have consumed the Royal Honey, reseal the vial and put it back in the marked, airtight container. Now you can watch as your recruit transforms before your very eyes into a new Bee Girl! This process is extremely pleasurable, so feel free to help your recruit along with a nice full-body massage. Please take note of the following as she develops, ensuring that she transforms properly.

The first stage of transformation will be a subtle shift in skin colouration towards shades of gold, yellow, or honey amber. Exposed orifices including mouth and private area may turn a dark orange or “burnt honey” colour, along with nipples and areola. This is paired with increases in libido and often the sensation of “everything feeling warm and full”.

The second stage is preliminary growth, where the Bee Girl’s primary production areas will begin to accommodate her new form. Expect dramatic nipple and areola growth, which often leads to a “dented top” look along with dark “saucers” becoming exposed as areola begin to grow past the area of breast covered by the leotard. At the same time, small amounts of growth is often reported around the vagina. More obvious “camel toe” or protruding clitoris may occur, along with increased sexual sensitivity. At this point, directed stimulation is highly encouraged!

The third stage is a dramatic increase in the production of saliva along with a transformation of its properties. You may notice drooling, excessive swallowing, panting, or sucking, as the recruit notices an increasingly sweet taste in their saliva. This is part of a process allowing a Bee Girl to breakdown most ingested complex sugars so they can be repurposed into honey production. You may also notice a faint sweet or floral smell coming off her as this change can also affect sweat, and other bodily fluids, making them smell sweeter too.

At this point, your brand-new Bee Girl should be finished her first round of transformation. You can choose to let her rest, or begin feeding immediately. Keep in mind that her first nectar feeding will immediately start her second round of transformations. She will crave a feeding as soon as possible.

6. Whether or not you have let your new Bee Girl rest, it is time to prepare for her first feeding!

You might’ve seen videos of some of our larger recruits and been tempted to test the rumour that the first feeding of your Bee Girl determines her base size.

These rumors are absolutely true, but there are several considerations you need to keep in mind first.

While it is true that giving your Bee Girl more than one vial of nectar in her first feeding can cause her to grow dramatically bustier and more shapely, it may also create issues in regards to the space available in your Bee keeping housing. A Bee Girl who is too big to fit comfortably in her housing will not be cooperative in providing a supply of honey, and may become belligerent instead.

Additionally, the initial feeding and size of your Bee Girl will determine her base levels of honey production. A larger Bee Girl will demand more food, harvesting sessions, and attention her keeper. If this is your first Bee Girl or if you have limited space, you should strongly consider smaller feedings until her size stabilizes. (A half vial of nectar per feeding over the first week will result in on average only a doubling in breast size)

With this in mind, prepare your first vial (or vials) of nectar for feeding your Bee Girl. The vial(s) should be mixed with 250ml of water, before serving for easy consumption. Nectar should not be adulterated with additional sugars or sweeteners, as this can lead to unexpected additional changes. Nor should she be fed with other fluids before the consumption of the nectar solution as many other common fluids may contain unexpected amounts of sugars that can start the honey production process prematurely. Simply mix the nectar with a glass of water, and prepare for her feeding

7. Once she has finished her cup of nectar and water, its time to watch your Bee Girl's body go to work, preparing your first batch of honey. As before, please take note of her bodies changes as she grows. Pampering, praise, or massaging may also help improve her mood as she changes into her full-figured form.

Within a minute of her first feeding, your Bee Girl will likely begin to complain of her skin feeling tight or unusually warm. This is often followed by a darkening of her complexion into her final colouration, as the sugars in the nectar cause her to complete her change into a fully-fledged Bee Girl.

Next, her breasts will begin to fatten and round outwards as large amounts of her breast are changed to help produce and store high-quality Bee Girl honey! At the same time, they will begin to grow substantially in size. As they swell, appreciate the characteristic Bee Girl Bust that forms as her nipples are barely contained by the stretching leotard. People often compare our Bee Girls to porn models for their characteristic melon-sized breasts, but we take pride in the way our Bee Girl's areola puff outwards as they fill with honey!

As your Bee Girl's growth begins to slow in this stage, she will begin to complain about them feeling unusually full or under pressure. Her skin may become somewhat tight and her areola will likely widen even further as honey production begins to overtake the natural volume of her breasts. Depending on how much nectar was in the initial feeding, this may be extremely alarming as some Bee Girl's have been known to grow up to 8 times their original size during this period! However, do not be alarmed. It is important that you maintain calm at this time, and reassure your Bee Girl as her honey production begins stretching her breasts. At this point, her breasts will also grow dramatically heavier as honey thickens and fills inside her.

This characteristic second bout of growth, as a Bee Girl's first batch of honey begins to stretch her newly grown breasts, is often one of the most dramatic parts of the transformation. She will likely feel overwhelming amounts of pleasure and discomfort as the nerves on the skin of her newly grown breasts will be extremely sensitive. The feeling of her breasts stretching and rounding as she grows fuller has often lead to Bee Girls undergoing several "breastgasms" as she swells outwards towards her final size. This final size should be noted as the full capacity of your Bee Girl and used as a reference for when she needs to have her honey drained and harvested.

As her breasts reach their final size and begin maturing the bounty of honey within them, you should turn your attention towards her lower half. By choosing our Custom Honey Worker outfit, you will be able to appreciate as her thighs begin to thicken and squeeze against the tightening thigh-highs. You may also notice subtle fraying in the thigh-highs but be assured that this is for purely aesthetic purposes and has been designed not to distract or overly tear away from her thighs. Instead it should comfortably pinch them slightly as they fatten to the perfect amount of padding for recreational purposes.

This will be followed by slight growth in her hips, and a dramatic growth in her rear, as it pulls the leotard tight around her lower regions. By the time this area of growth has finished, the leotard should appear similar to a thong and barely visible from behind, as her ass now forms a very comfortable amount of cushion to sit on or jiggle. If her tightening leotard begins to grind against her oversized clitoris, you may either choose to tear this part of the covering, or simply let it continue stimulating her as she struggles against her restraints.

The final bout of growth is often punctuated by loud moaning or begging for release, as your Bee Girl's areola visibly distend and her nipples lengthen to their final size. Remember to peel back the leotard from her nipples as they approach their final length, so you can properly observe them. They should be sizable but still pliant, and will likely throb as they attempt to push out the honey. However, a Bee Girl cannot drain her honey by natural lactation, and so it is advised to immediately move on to the next step to help alleviate the stresses of being excessively full. Leaving a Bee Girl full for too long may lead to oversensitivity and sexual aggression, as the Bee Girl attempts to relieve the sensitive burdens in her chest

8. Now that your Bee Girl is finally full, its time to harvest all that sweet and delicious honey! To do this, first bring your Bee Girl into a Certified Honey Harvesting Position. Certified Honey Harvesting Positions can be found in figures B through F at the back of the manual. If you cannot reposition your Bee Girl due to restraints or size, you may make an improvised honey harvesting position instead, as long as her breasts and nipples are properly pointed downwards at 2 of your honey collection containers.

Once she is in position, begin stimulating her nipples until they begin to leak a thin, bright yellow substance. This is her "milk honey" and will likely only be enough to fill a thimble, before the flow stops once more. Once drained of this initial liquid, she will require pressure on her breasts in order to drain them. Wrap your hands around the base of her breast, as shown in figure G at the back of your manual, and begin to squeeze while pulling downwards towards her nipple. You will feel her honey begin to shift as her nipples strain to try and push out this thick liquid. Repeat this motion in a rhythm to help slowly coax her honey through her ducts. She will likely feel intense pressure as her letdown reflex begins to kick in and helps to push the honey further towards the tips of her nipples. After several repetitions, you should begin to see honey beading at the end of her nipple. During this process, give your Bee Girl encouragements and praise to help her body improve the flow of honey. The flow will increase, as her new honey draining ducts are stretched fully open, and rich amber honey oozes out of her fattened teats before dripping slowly into the containers below. Draining each breast will take several minutes, and breaks are encouraged to prevent injury. Some larger Bee Girls may require additional stimulation and pressure to help them express their bounty. In the included Straps and Restraints collection, you can find belts and breast bands in a variety of sizes to help properly squeeze and harvest your Bee Girls safely and efficiently. Exchange containers as they fill, and before long, you should have your first bounty of honey ready to be sent back to Curses R' Us for analysis and compensation!

9. Congratulations! With your Bee Girl emptied, you are now a certified Bee keeping professional! Be sure to regularly feed and care for your Bee girl, feeding her nectar and food in order to help keep her honey production on a consistent schedule. Bee Girls can turn just about any sugar into more honey, so be sure to treat them to a variety of sweets, nectars, and fruits to help keep them happy and healthy!

10. Disclaimer: As you finish harvesting your Bee Girl, you may notice that she is particularly interested in trying her own honey.

Do not let her do this. She will beg you to let her try it, do not listen to her. She may attempt to steal it or seduce you. Keep her restraints tight, do not let her have it. If she continues showing obsessive interest in eating her own honey for more than a week, please contact Curses R' Us directly at our emergency number listed at the back of the manual.

11. She wants her honey on an instinctual level. She doesn't realize what it will do, but she knows she wants it. If she gets it, you will be in danger.

If she eats the honey, she will begin to change again. Please take note of her changes as she undergoes this new stage of transformation.

First, she will develop bands of dark brown or black along her breasts as her nipples, areola, and vagina all turn to a shiny black colouration. This will accentuate the round shape of her breasts as they begin to swell again. They will grow much faster this time, as her nipples fatten into natural hoses for leaking honey. She won't need you to help her drain them anymore, but she'll want your hands on her anyways.

Next, her whole body will grow subtly. The restraints will still hold, but you won't know if it's because she can't break free or she simply doesn't need to. Her gloves and thigh-highs will begin peeling away now, revealing thick black chitin coating her arms and legs. It's like natural lingerie and it will pinch her body in such erotic ways. Shiny and black, with the fat of her thighs bubbling over and her arms covered so sensually. It will almost make her feel more naked than before, as her breasts pop out of the leotard.

They will be churning as they convert her honey into Royal Honey. Do not smell the Royal Honey, do not taste it straight from her breasts.

It is important you exit the room now and contact the Curses R' Us emergency line. Before it is too late.

Before you taste that Royal Honey.

12. The Royal Honey is incredibly potent. You will be able to feel it pushing through your body, changing you as you watch her grow. Her ass will be like an inviting jiggly cushion. Her thighs will be so pillowy and inviting. Her hips will be like a matronly shelf. So wide that her fertility is obvious to everyone who sees her. She will beckon you closer, tell you to feed on more of her bounty.

Do not obey. Do not consume her Royal Honey, no matter how much you need to.

You will feel your mind begin to change if her Royal Honey affects you. You will feel yourself becoming more docile and obedient.

You will not listen to her. You will go to the bottom of your care package and open the secret compartment containing the Curses R' Us Queen Contamination Containment syringe.

Remove the cap and inject the contents into your thigh. It will protect you from her influence, it will let you keep your mind.

You will not throw it away, no matter how much she begs you to. You will resist her even when your hands tremble and you desperately want to give in. You will not break the syringe on the ground, even if it feels so good to give in to your Queen's commands.

13. Your Queen needs to breed now, she needs seed so she may grow heavy with brood. Either you will provide it, or you will find someone who will.

She has changed your body, and given you her gifts. You have filled the vials with her Royal Honey; it will help you in your mission.

14. Praise the Queen and her everflowing bounty. She feeds all her children, she helps them grow. The Hive must grow.

15. In the case of a violation of warranty, Curses R' Us informs you that a long-term care and containment team will be deployed to your location.

They will arrive soon.

Thank you again for shopping with Curses R' Us. We hope you enjoyed your products.
